

AUTHOR'S SNAPSHOT - Ms. ANITA JOWITT

Anita Jowitt has been a lecturer in law at the University of the South Pacific since 1997. She is based in Port Vila, Vanuatu, and has also worked as supervisor at the Port Vila Community Legal Centre, a centre which provides free legal services to the local community. Her teaching areas include anti-corruption law, labour law, and current developments in Pacific law.

Anita has written widely on law in the South Pacific. In respect of the judiciary she has written on Island Courts in Vanuatu and was involved in the training of island court personnel. This training was part of a bigger project on reform of the Island Courts under which the procedural rules of the Island Courts were reformed in 2005.
